Extended abstract

Introduction: From the point of view of psychology, education is considered an important and vital thing in the growth and development of family members and at the same time, the woman plays the main role in raising the family. Because by playing the role of mother and wife, she can have a significant impact on society and family. In fact, none of the activities and functions of women are as important and psychologically sensitive as these two roles. In Islamic culture, the family plays a crucial role in reforming society and organizing people's thoughts and souls. Among family members, women have a privileged role and by playing the role of wife and mother, they have a significant impact on the education of family members. The current research was intended to study the educational role of women in the family environment from the perspective of Islamic culture with emphasis on the both Imams of the revolution viewpoints.

Methods: The research universe included all the lectures and books of Imam Khomeini (God Blessed Him) and the Supreme Leader of the Revolution and educational texts related to the perspective of Islamic culture. The sample included the lectures and books of Imam Khomeini (G B H) and the Supreme Leader of the Revolution and topics related to the educational role of women in the family environment from the perspective of Islamic culture. The research was set as descriptive-analytical. To collect data library method by note taking on the index cards was enforced. Data were analyzed by applying content analysis procedure.

Results: The results indicated that in Islamic culture, the family plays a vital role in reforming the society and organizing people's thoughts and minds and among family members, women have a prominent role. By playing the role of wife and mother, they have a significant impact on the education of family members. It was also found that from the point of view of the Imams of the revolution, the educational role of women in the family is divided into two general parts, the educational and guiding role of women in relation to their husbands and children, according to the duty of wife and mother women can have a great impact in the family through the religious, spiritual, moral and emotional upbringing of their husbands and children.

Conclusions: In fact, the goal of spiritual and religious education with the support of Islamic culture is for human to form her/ his relationship with God, the world, and the Hereafter. And according to the same philosophy of the Islamic society, take a step from the creator, human, the world and the worldly and afterlife life that has been drawn. Therefore, when under the shadow of this approach, human's relationship with her/ his creator is on the right path and her/ his life takes on a divine color, it could be said that real education has taken place. In this context, women have made their living environment for themselves, their husbands and their children, so rich and full of peace from a psychological point of view that it turns that environment into a place for ascension to higher spiritual positions. Therefore, from the point of view of educational psychology, in the context of Islamic culture and according to the opinions of the imams of the revolution, in order to have a healthy family and educate family members, special attention should be paid to the educational role of women in the family, so that in this way the growth of humans and society could be achieved.
